WHAT SHOULD I DO IF I AM STOPPED BY THE POLICE?

A Guide for the Pinckney Community

As members of your Pinckney Village Police Department, we have developed this guide to help you understand why you might be stopped by an officer and how you can expect to be treated. It's important for you to understand what to expect when an officer stops you on the street or when you are driving your car.

We also want you to know that you have the right to compliment or make a complaint about an officer's actions at any time. If you have any questions or concerns, please don't hesitate to contact us. We want to hear from you!

Excellence"*

What Should I Do If I'm Stopped on the Street?

If a police officer stops you on the street, he or she has a reason. The officer may have reason to believe that you are in violation of the law. It's also possible that a crime was committed nearby and the officer thinks that you might be able to help.

In any case, DON'T RUN from the officer. Be calm. Find out what the officer wants. Don't assume that you know the reason for being contacted. Provide identification when asked. Answer Questions truthfully. You have the right to ask questions of the officer. In doing so, REMAIN CALM. Yelling, threatening, or arguing with the officer will only make the situation more difficult.

What Should I do If I'm Pulled Over In My Car?

If you are driving a car and an officer signals you to stop, you must pull over. Stay in your car. If it's dark, turn on the interior light. Do not leave your car unless directed to do so by the officer.

Keep your hands on the steering wheel. Wait for the officer to approach your vehicle. The officer will request your license, registrations, and proof of insurance. Police officers are trained to ask for identification first, then provide an explanation for the stop. Please provide the officer with the required documents. A PPD police officer will always inform you of the reason that you are being stopped.

Traffic violations are the most common reason for stopping a vehicle. However, you may also have been stopped for a registration or equipment violation. A criminal investigation may be another reason for being stopped. Your vehicle may match the description of a vehicle that was involved in a crime.

At some point during the stop, the officer may ask you and any passengers to step from the car. This request may be for safety reasons, or the officer may suspect illegal contraband in the car. The courts have upheld the officer's right to make such a request.

Our actions during a traffic stop are guided by the fact that many police officers are assaulted and/or killed each year during traffic stops. In fact, according to the Uniform Crime Report, 113 officers were assaulted on traffic related contacts in the year 2010 in the State of Michigan. Our goal is to protect you, the motorist, and to ensure our own safety.

Finally, if you are issued a citation, DON'T ARGUE at the scene. You have the right to contest a citation before a judge or magistrate at a later time. This doesn't require the service of an attorney and the time involved is often minimal.

I'd Like to Speak with Someone Regarding the Officer's Actions. What Can I Do?

Your comments are important to us. If you would like to compliment or make a complaint about an officer's actions, please do one of the following:

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

Q: Why Does the officer ask for identification first?

A: The officer is trained to do so. This is so the officer knows the name of the person they are contacting.

Q: When a car is stopped at night, why does the officer appear to "sneak up" on the driver and shine their lights into the car?

A: It is a safety precaution for the officer. Officers are trained to minimize their exposure to traffic and potential danger from inside the vehicle. The bright light illuminates the interior of the vehicle.

Q: If I'm pulled over for a traffic violation, why do other police cars sometimes show up?

A: It is not uncommon for officers who are in close proximity to check on one another, even when they are not requested. Again, this is for safety reasons.

Q: Why does the officer sit in the car for so long? What is the officer doing?

A: The officer usually takes the time to verify your driving status and vehicle registration. The officer does this as quickly as possible, but there can sometimes be delays in the computer response.

Definition of Reasonable Cause

There is no exact definition of reasonable cause. A police officer might have reasonable cause to administer a breath analysis test to an individual that appears to be under the age of 21 and the individual has:

- Odor of alcohol on their breath
- Bloodshot eyes
- Slurred speech
- Staggered walking
- Loud and unruly behavior
- Alcoholic beverages in their possession
- Vomited or is incapacitated
